The election day came, passed, and as the telegraph began to indicate that his party was third and last in the race, "Uncle Abe' saw that his roosters were "dead cocks in the pit," so far as the State was concerned, but as old benighted Tehama had elected a Democratic Coroner, and several Justices and Constables, he proceeded to put his roosters on duty and set them to crowing over their local triumph. The daily Sentinel of the 4th, therefore, comes to us with an entire column filled with roosters stretching their necks and making the air vocal with the music of an imaginary Democratic triumph.

STEALING ROSES THROUGH THE GATE

BY MOLLIE E. MOORE.

Long ago, do you remember.

When we sauntered home from school,
As the silent glosming settled,
With its breezes light and cool?
When we passed a starely mansion,
And we stopped, remember, Kate,
How we spent a trembling moment
Stealing roses through the gate?

How they hung ac very tempting,

And our eager hands were small,
And the bars were wide —oh! Kate,
We trembled; but we took them all!
And we turned with fearful footsteps,
For you know 'twas growing late;
But the flowers, we hugged them closely
Roses stolen through the gate!

Well, the years have hastened onward, And those happy days are flow:; Golden prime of early childhood, Laughing moments spent and gone! But yester e'en I passed your cottage, And I saw, oh! careless Kate, Handsome Percy bending downward— Stealing roses through the gate.

Stealing roses where the willow
O'er the street its long bough dips!
Stealing roses—yes, I'd swear it—
Stealing roses from your lips!
And I neard a dainty murmur,
Cooling round some blessed fate:
Don't deuy it! w su't Percy
Stealing roses through the gate?

CHERRY CREEK.

Mr. A. M. Smith, Superintendent and General Manager of the Golden Era Mining Company, came in last evening from Cherry Creek in company with Mr. Gosper, one of A. E. DAVIS and ALDER RANDALL, the owners. The company have their sawmill about ready to run, the only thing lacking is 600 feet of piping, which is being made at the tin shop of Messrs. Frederick & Hill. So soon as they can manufacture the necessary lumber for the erection of their quartz mill, a large force of men will be put to work in its erection and all of this can be accomplished during the next forty days, when we expect to be able to chronicie the successful working of the Golden Era quartz mill. Since the company started to put up machinery, a few weeks ago, several very valuable gold leads have been discovered in the district, and the greatest activity prevails all through the hilts in and around Cherry Creek. The latest find is a huge gold mine, four feet wide, by a Mr. Sessions, formerly proprietor of Condition of Memphis-Appeal to the Odd the Big Bug station.
